"We are very pleased to utilize existing technology which will for the first time enable DC residents, and in fact, anyone on the internet, to observe the DC Court of Appeals, sitting as a full or en banc, court, in action." said Chief Judge Eric T. Washington.

Note: This is a pilot project of the DC Court of Appeals and does not in any way eliminate the general rule of the DC Courts that cameras may not be used in courtrooms without explicit permission of the chief judge of the relevant court.
