

Jeffrey S. Gutman is a Professor of Clinical Law at George Washington University Law School where he has taught civil procedure and directed clinical programs since 1994. From 1987-1994, he served as a Trial Attorney in the Federal Programs Branch, Civil Division of the Department of Justice. Professor Gutman has an active litigation practice, most recently in the area of compensation for unjustly convicted individuals. He has mediated dozens of civil cases with the Multi-Door Division of the Superior Court and is on the Board of Directors of the Center for Dispute Settlement.